Did you know that wound care, in hospitals and on location, has been a pretty imprecise process to date? Done with rulers and visual approximations. Until now...

My guest for this week's episode of the She's The Boss Chats podcast is the wonderful Santosh Kaur, founder and CEO of SmartHEAL.

Santosh is such an inspiration!

After growing up in the Punjab in India, the daughter of a businessman and an academic mother, Santosh had loads of female role models who were doctors and academics on her maternal side, making medicine an easy choice for her when she finished school.

From there she moved to Delhi and started her own private practice as a Doctor, and also ran a Health Clinic, before deciding to move to Australia.

Once she got to Australia, she decided against completing another 6 years of study to qualify as a doctor again (why do we do this?!), and instead, she worked as a nurse and focused on aged care.

This led to her 'lightbulb moment' when she realised that with the advance of technology, there had been so many improvements to the medical profession, but wound care was still a very manual process, based on anecdotal evidence and experience.

She wanted to change that!

SmartHeal is a clever new app that uses AI and can measure the length and depth of wounds, and provide advice on the best way to manage the wound. It also allows the users (currently Doctors and nurses), to access help remotely if needed.

Santosh is determined to leave an impactful legacy, where she has made a difference, and there is no doubt that she will do that.

She's amazing and you will be inspired by her story!
